PokerTek President and CEO to attend IGE

IGE's reputation for being one of the most influential gatherings of gaming professionals and opinion-formers in the world has been bolstered with news that PokerTek President and CoFounder James Crawford, together with CEO Chris Halligan, will be flying in from the United States in order to attend next week's exhibition.

Messrs Crawford and Halligan will be supporting the marketing of the 10seat PokerPro™ fully automated electronic poker table, which is being distributed by Aristocrat Technologies Europe, from stand 3410.

Of the 272 PokerPro tables placed worldwide by the end of Q3 2008, Aristocrat had placed 92 outside of the United States, a significant proportion of which are sited in Europe. This success story prompted the extension of the distribution agreement announced at the beginning of the year. Reflecting on the relationship, PokerTek's Chris Halligan confirmed: "Aristocrat has been a good ally for PokerTek on several levels. Not only have they performed well in growing PokerPro's international market share, they've been an excellent business partner. We are delighted to continue our working relationship with them."

PokerPro will feature amongst a huge collection of gaming solutions being shown by Aristocrat at IGE, over 30 of which are being shown for the first time in Europe.
